F. O. BROWN
The Tire Repair Man

THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN

By F. S. Sullivan

When I read the daily papers of the doings of "our boys" I can almost smell the battle smoke, and hear the awful noise of monstrous guns booming along the battle line, and my rheumatiz gets better and I read on, feeling fine. I can see our lines advancing with bayonets all set, I can see our colors flying o'er ground that's slippery wet with the blood of slaughtered Prussians and Bulgars and of Turks, and my heart keeps beating faster, until it thumps and jerks, I can hear the shells screaming, see the airplanes in the sky, and see the bombs dropping from somewhere up on high. I used to think that Europe was far away indeed, and the people who inhabit it of different sect and creed, and a different set of morals from us that's on this side, but the war has brought this truth to me, that the world is not so wide. It has shown me that geography aint got a thing to do with shaping people's character; they're just like me and you; and though a man may hail from France, or Italy, or Wales, or though he speak the dialect of Serbia or Carls, or come from Tipperary, or Dublin on the bay, or Belgium, or New Zealand, or else from Australia, mayhap from India's coral strands, perchance from

Departed

No higher tribute of respect has ever been paid to a departed Veteran of the Civil War than was paid to Mr. A. J. Byrns whose remains were laid to rest in Graceland Cemetery last Sunday afternoon. The surviving Veterans, less than a dozen in number, were present and with the assistance of The State Guards, had charge of the services. Rev. Geo. A. Kraft, pastor of the M. E. Church led in prayer, and a short address by R. M. Painter, followed. At the Cemetery the G. A. R. services were held. Mr. Byrns was one of the oldest citizens of the county and up until a short time before his death was active for one of his years. A few months ago when it became evident that his health was failing, he went to Louisiana with the hope of regaining it, but without avail.

Albert James Byrns, eldest son of James and Mary A. Byrns, of Waldron, Kankakee County, Illinois, was born April 16, 1844 and died September 25, 1918.

At the age of 19 years he volunteered his services, at his Country's call and served as Corporal of Co. G, 147 Infantry during the latter half of the Civil War, being mustered out of service February 4, 1866. The following June he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Ellen Drayer, of Kankee, Illinois. To this union were born six children, Mrs. Geo. DeCow, of Lake Charles, Louisiana; Mrs. H. B. Phelps and Mrs. J. E. Roberts, of this city; Mrs. Frank Randall, of Sarcozie Missouri; Myron, of Broken Bow, Oklahoma; and Charles, of Morrill, Nebraska.

Two years after the death of his wife he was married to her sister, Sarah E. Drayer. Four children were born to this union, Frank, of this city; Robert, of West Lake Louisiana; James, of Portland, Oregon; and Mrs. Denny Coon, of Fowler, Colorado.

In the Spring of 1885 he moved his family to Meade county, and where he has since resided, having in that time been twice elected to the office of Sheriff.

He was patriotic almost to the point of being an extremist and was happy in the knowledge that he had two grand sons; Paul Randall now in the trenches at the front, and Robert Kondon Phelps, on the eve of departure, who were old enough to volunteer their services to their country in its present need.

He leaves to mourn his death, his wife, ten children, several grandchildren and one great-grand child.

CARD OF THANKS

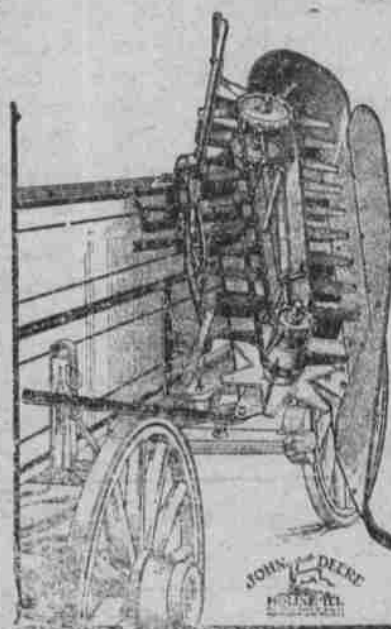

To the G. A. R. State Guards, and Flower committee, and all others who so kindly assisted in the burial of our husband and father, please accept our heartfelt thanks.

Mrs. A. J. Byrns and family.

Tokio, or Canada, or Portugal, he is my brother so long as he is willing to battle to the end that Truth may sit upon the Throne and wear the Diadem. It matters not what tongue he speaks, what uniform he wears, so long as he is of the wheat and not one of the tares. If he helps to bust the Kaiser and all his kith and kin he's done that which will cover a multitude of sin.

John Deere Kaffir Header

For Kaffir Corn, Milo Maize, Sorghum, Feterita, and Other Similar Crops

The knives cut off the stalks at an angle. This is better than cutting squarely, as less power is required, and the knives last longer on account of less wear.

John Deere Kaffir Header knives are special high carbon crucible steel and are especially designed for this work.

Rapid Elevation

Its construction and the location of the John Deere Header on the wagon are such that the heads fall directly onto the carrying chain as soon as cut. This places them in the right position to be elevated promptly. It means rapid work because the direction the heads are moving does not have to be changed by the header.

The John Deere is mounted on a pivot at the rear end practically at height of top of wagon box.

But little power is required to operate it, as drawing and mounting pivots are on a common center and there is no change in relative positions of working parts when it is adjusted to cut shorter stalks.

The knives grasp the heads, cutting them off as they fall back onto the elevator. They are then elevated with an easy incline until practically in the wagon.

There is no whipping effect, which would thresh out the grain or corn, but the movement with The John Deere is gradual from the time the knives cut off the heads until they fall into the wagon—an especially desirable feature when cutting heads of unequal height.

The speed of cutting knives and both upper and lower chain are the same. There is no tendency to drag or break the stalks, and the strain on the machine is evenly distributed.

There are no corners into which the heads may drop and collect. Choking up The John Deere Header is practically impossible.
